

HOW TO START LONG-TERM CARE PLANNING CONVERSATIONS

The disruption and turmoil of a global pandemic, economic recession, social unrest and a polarizing Presidential election have clients seeking stability and security. Shifting priorities are leading us back to the basics of Abraham Maslow's hierarchy of needs pyramid: shelter, safety, and love and belonging. Clients, who may not have been as concerned with planning for long-term care for themselves or their family, are turning to their advisors for even more guidance beyond simply managing their portfolios.

7 IN 10

Since COVID, Americans have changed their attitude about planning for long-term care (LTC) and unforeseen health vulnerabilities.¹

The prospect of living to 90 or 100 years means it's even more important that you and your clients are knowledgeable about things like:

SENIOR HOUSING COSTS

SMART HOME TECHNOLOGY

MEDICARE/MEDICAID COVERAGE

OPTIONS FOR ADAPTING HOMES FOR SENIOR LIVING

ADVISE ON A LIVABLE HOME MAINTENANCE PLAN.

Every 10 years clients age 50+ should focus on home modifications to ensure safety and comfort with aging. Connecting your clients with a Certified Aging in Place Specialist (CAPS) or Senior Home Safety Specialist is a great value-add to the advisor-client relationship.

Look for this certification with home remodelers including those found through HomeAdvisor, Home Depot or Lowe's or you can find a credentialed professional on the Age Safe® America website.

INTEGRATE THE AFFECTIVE FORECASTING: HAPPINESS PORTFOLIO QUESTIONNAIRE INTO CLIENT DISCUSSIONS.

It's important to have a basic understanding of three psychological theories as we age: flow (self), generativity (giving back) and linked lives (relationships and longevity). We've developed a set of questions that can help uncover more meaningful lifestyle goals which can inform the financial pathways needed to reach those goals.
